BETTY GOW, IN TEARS ON WITNESS STAND, IDENTIFIES LINDBERGH BABY'S SHIRT AND SLEEPING SUIT; TELLS HOW SHE PUT HER CHARGE TO BED ON FATEFUL NIGHT

Tells of Colonel's Cry "Anne, They've Stolen Our Baby," Then Because of Sobs is Unable to Resume for Several Minutes—Defense Then Starts Cross-Examination

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

COURT ROOM, FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 7 — Miss Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, broke down on the witness stand today at the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, as she told of learning the baby had been stolen from his crib. Testimony was suspended briefly to allow her to recover her composure.

Miss Gow took the stand as a key witness at the trial of Hauptmann who is accused of kidnapping and murdering the child.

Pale and a trifle nervous, Miss Gow walked timidly to the stand. Her face wore a serious expression as Attorney General David T. Wilentz began questioning her.

When Hauptmann entered the court room surrounded by armed guards, photographers let loose a barrage of flash lights. Hauptmann blinked, but otherwise his pale face showed no sign of emotion.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrived an instant later and took a seat beside Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, at the prosecution table. Lindbergh was only a few seats from Hauptmann.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the prisoner's wife, came into the court room a few minutes later. She had a brief chat with her husband.

One of the biggest crowds yet allowed into the court room was present when court was called to order. Many of the spectators sat in the window sills and were standing in the aisles. The majority of them were women.

Miss Gow, answering the first question of Wilentz, gave her name as Bessie, middle name Mowat, Gow, of Scotland. "How long were you employed by the Lindbergh's prior to March 1st, 1932?" asked Wilentz.

"Since February 25, 1931," she replied.

"Where had you worked before?"

"In Englewood, N. J., for six weeks," was the reply.

Miss Gow identified the woolen shirt and sleeping suit the child wore the night he was kidnapped.

She identified cloth from which the little shirt was cut. She took the pathetic exhibits in her hand and showed them to the jury. She also identified some blue silk thread given to her by Mrs. Elsie Whately, the Lindbergh butler's wife, and used by Miss Gow in sewing the baby's shirt. She identified the thumb guard she had tied round the baby's wrist.

Miss Gow was near tears as she told of the last night she put her charge to bed.

She was asked if the shutters on the front windows were closed. She said they were closed securely.

"All the windows were closed and shutters fixed, except the southeast one of the nursery," Miss Gow testified.

Miss Gow then told how she prepared the child for bed.

Miss Gow's eyes were brimming with tears at this juncture, but she fought them back.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz permitted her to leave the stand to point out on a chart the location of the baby's nursery. Miss Gow stated:

"It was about half past eight, after dinner I received a telephone call from a friend."

"Who was that friend," asked Wilentz.

"Henry Johnson."

Miss Gow said that after talking on the telephone to Johnson she went to the servants' living room.

"Then where did you go?" Wilentz asked.

"I started for the nursery," the nurse replied. "I proceeded to a bathroom and from there to the nursery."

"I didn't put the light on. I walked to the window, to put it up and turn on an electric light."

"I then walked to the crib. I put my hands on the rail, waiting for the room to heat. Then I noticed I couldn't hear the baby breathing. I reached down; he was not there."

"I then ran out to find Mrs. Lindbergh," she continued.

"I met Mrs. Lindbergh and asked her if she had the baby. She said 'no.' She turned quietly and ran downstairs."

"I saw the Colonel and asked him; he said 'no' and ran past me upstairs."

Miss Gow told how, when Colonel

Albert Roe Dies at Home Following A Year's Illness

Albert Roe, a very well known colored resident of Bristol, died at his home, 309 Washington street, Saturday night at 8.40 o'clock. Death was due to heart trouble from which the deceased had been a sufferer for the past year.

Mr. Roe was a native of North Carolina and was 62 years of age. He had been a resident of Bristol for the past 34 years. When Mr. Roe first came to Bristol he was associated with Asher J. Conn, barber, Dorrance street. Then he was barber at the Algonquin Club and later was employed by George Munce. Then he entered business for himself at the Washington street address where he continued until the time of his death.

Mr. Roe was a member of the Clinton J. Lewis Lodge, No. 201, I. B. P. O. E. of W., and a trustee of Bethel A. M. E. Church.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 at the late residence of the deceased and three o'clock in Bethel A. M. E. Church. The survivors are his wife, one son, and a grandchild; seven brothers, Henry, New York; Israel, Robert, William and Elvy, North Carolina; Gaston, Florence, N. J.; Mack, Washington, D. C.; and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Denard, Woodville, L. I.; Mrs. James Gray, Philadelphia.

Friends may call Tuesday evening. The funeral will be under the direction of the H. S. Rue estate.

QUAKERTOWN REPORTS LOW FIRE LOSS IN 1934

Chief Strunk Tells Borough Council There Were Only Ten Alarms in Boro'

41 ARRESTS WERE MADE

QUAKERTOWN, Jan. 7—Fire losses in this borough during the past year, according to a report submitted at a meeting of Borough Council by Fire Chief Raymond E. Strunk, amounted to only $390.

The complete report of the chief showed the following: total number of alarms answered, 36; alarms in borough, 10; alarms out of town, 26; fire loss in borough, $390, and loss covering all alarms in town and out of town, $17,595.

During a discussion relative to the work of the fire department suggestion was made that the borough adopt a standard ordinance governing the fire department. The fire committee of

ELECTION OF BUCKS COUNTY INSTRUCTOR TO THE PRESIDENCY OF EDINBORO COLLEGE OCCURRED IN APRIL; J. H. HOFFMAN RE-ELECTED SCHOOL SUPT.

Life-Long Resident of Fallsington Was Found Dead, A Suicide, During That Month—Review of News Appearing in Courier for That Period Shows Variety

During the month of April, in 1934, there appeared in the columns of the Courier a variety of news. These included the election of Carmon Ross, Doylestown, as president of Edinboro State Teachers' College; reelection of J. Harry Hoffman as superintendent of Bucks County public schools; a number of accidents, thefts, etc.

The review follows:

1st—A balmy Easter day called forth many in this section in their Spring finery. Special services in churches of the vicinity were features, and many families conducted Easter egg hunts for the children.

2nd—Thieves made away with groceries and cigarettes valued at a few hundred dollars when they made a wholesale raid at the American Stores Co. establishment at Southampton.

In two separate accidents, two people were hurt in this section. They were: Mrs. Ellen Burke McClafferty, Philadelphia; and William Harvison, North Radcliffe street.

Pleading guilty to two charges of burglary, three of felonious entry, larceny and receiving stolen goods, Romeo Paoli, 20, of Doylestown, was committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory.

A stubborn blaze at the home of Mrs. Anne Wagner, near Somerton, was battled for nearly four hours by firemen.

3rd—A life-long resident of Fallsington, Frank B. Watson, was found dead, his body hanging from the rafters of an outbuilding of his home, in Fallsington. It was believed the man had ended his life about two days previous.

One hundred members and friends of Bristol Exchange Club participated in the eighth anniversary dinner.

4th—A Trenton boy was accidentally shot and wounded by a friend while the two youngsters were camping at Black Rock, near Yardley. The injured was Albert Bencivengo, 10, of Trenton, N. J., and the one who handled the gun was Elio Emilano, 16, Trenton, N. J.

5th—The premiere showing of "Help Yourself," the musical comedy given by 80 young people of Bristol and outlying towns for benefit of Bucks County Junior Women's Clubs, occurred here.

Governor Gifford Pinchot approved the election of Dr. Carmon Ross, superintendent of schools at Doylestown, and president of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, to the presidency of the Edinboro State Teachers' College. Dr. Ross was named to succeed Dr. C. C. Crawford, resigned.

John D. Gilbert, 38, Andalusia, was arrested when he reported his automobile stolen to police of the Paul and Ruan street station, Frankford. He was slated on suspicion of hit-

EDUCATIONAL PROJECTS ARE STARTED IN BRISTOL

One Designed for Adults Who Had Limited Opportunity For Education

OTHER, YOUTH CENTER

Under auspices of the Emergency Educational Council in Bucks County, two educational projects have just started in Bristol. One project is designed for adults who have had a limited opportunity for acquiring adequate education; the purpose of the other is to develop a youth center in which an effort will be made to give young people of the community an opportunity of self-expression and self-betterment along varied lines.

The subjects to be covered in the adult course will consist of English, creative writing, public speaking, parliamentary law, and citizenship. This course is under the joint direction of Michael DeRisi, Bristol; and Miss Margaret Mecher, Edgely.

The youth center will be in charge of William Hilbert, Bristol, and one woman yet to be assigned to the project. Dramatics, music, discussion groups, hobby clubs, etc., will be undertaken.

A fairly good number have already enrolled in both of these courses, and it is suggested that those who have not enrolled, but who are interested, contact any of the three people mentioned above, either at their homes or at the Bracken Post Home, during the hours of 10-12 or 1-3 each day. Every effort will be made to accommodate all those desirous of participating, and it is hoped that both courses will attract a large number.

This LWD project was organized last week, with actual work starting today. The instructors, in addition to classes at the American Legion home, are spending two hours daily on outside work, giving instruction to mothers, aged persons, or business people, who are unable to attend classes during the hours specified.

run driving, assault and battery and collision in connection with an accident a short time earlier in which William J. Dougherty, of Philadelphia, was injured.

Bucks County's representative in the Pennsylvania State spelling championship at Harrisburg, was eliminated when he left the last "e" off of stevedore. The representative from this county was Simon S. Lint, Milford Square, who had previously won the county title in an "old-timers" contest.

6th—Two silk mill employees of a Bethlehem plant admitted to private Joseph Davey, of Doylestown sub-station of state police, that they broke into a Springtown garage a day previous, and stole tools and accessories valued at $206.

7th—The 77th anniversary of the institution of No. 1 Fire Company was marked. The president, who was elected two days previous, was Samuel Hardy.

There were 130 members and friends of Lily Rebekah Lodge, No. 366, I. O. O. F., who enjoyed the fifth anniversary banquet here.

Norwood P. Chase, 78, died at his Wood street home.

Dr. William S. Erdman, prominent Bucks County physician, and attending physician at the Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, died at that institution at the age of 64. His home was in Buckingham.

Alvan VanDoren, 55, of Otter street, succumbed in Trenton, N. J.

Two New Jersey residents, Herman Grefe, and Clarence S. Roberts, were exonerated from responsibility in the death of Patrick Hughes, 52, Bucks County, who was fatally injured near Harrow the previous month. The case was heard in Doylestown.

8th—Three persons were injured in an automobile accident, one being a Bristol boy, Louis Curry, 2, who suffering from pneumonia, was being taken to a Philadelphia Hospital. The child was then removed to the institution in an ambulance.

Hector Turnbull, pioneer moving picture producer and former dramatic critic for a New York newspaper, died at his home on the Brownsburg Road, at the artists' colony.

9th—Comment was being made here, and congratulations extended on the attainment of the 150th year of service of the D. Landreth Seed Company. The Sesqui-Centennial of the industry was to be celebrated on May 21st.

Nearly 50 Morrisville women began solicitation throughout the borough of Morrisville and vicinity in an effort to raise $1,100 with which to continue the community nursing service for the year.

Bristol borough council enacted an ordinance legalizing playing of base-

HOUSING CAMPAIGN TO GET UNDER WAY HERE

Horace J. Palmer, Langhorne, Named As Chairman For County

EXPECT MUCH ACTIVITY

Appointment of Horace J. Palmer, Langhorne, as chairman of The Better Housing Campaign in Bucks County is announced by Edward P. Simons, Eastern District Manager of the Federal Housing Administration.

There is to be a county-wide campaign started within a few days in which every home owner will be contacted and requested to co-operate in this program. The success of the campaign will relieve the unemployment situation to a great extent, it is believed.

Bucks County has been divided into three districts, with offices at South Langhorne, Doylestown and Quakertown. John S. Lappan, South Langhorne, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Palmer as chairman there.

Mr. Palmer succeeds Stacy B. McIntee resigned, as county chairman. Griff Boardman, with headquarters in Philadelphia, is organizing the Housing Administration proups throughout the State.

Sixteenth Birthday of Wm. Hogarth Celebrated

The 16th birthday of William Hogarth, 925 Garden street, was celebrated last evening, in a pleasant social way.

Participants were: Mr. and Mrs. Hogarth and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Elmer and children, Mrs. Marion Daniel and son, Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Pone and children, June, Blanche, Marie and John, Edward McGlynn, George Whitcoe, Jr., and James Boyle, Bristol; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Di Cicio, Tullytown.

Regular use of the Courier classified column is economical and profitable.

TWENTY-TWO KILLED IN THIS AREA IN '34 BY AUTOMOBILES

Two-Thirds of Arrests for Drunkenness Also Made Here

PATROL MAKES REPORT

Most Active Suburban Station in the Entire State

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Jan. 7—Twenty-two persons were killed in this section on highways by automobiles, during 1934, according to the annual statistics compiled by Corporal R. D. Evans, who is in charge of the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol sub-station here.

The majority of those killed met death on the Lincoln Highway between Morrisville and here, where the road is only 18 feet wide in most places. The section from Morrisville to Fallsington has been widened to four lanes. With the completion and opening of the new super-highway much more room will be given to the heavy traffic through this section.

An intensive campaign has been conducted against intoxicated motorists and this is to continue with renewed vigor, until every drunken driver is driven from the highways.

The South Langhorne Highway Patrol last year hung up a new record by making more arrests and investigating more accidents than any suburban station in the State. Two-thirds of all the drunken drivers arrested in Bucks County were captured by this one station. During the year, 447 persons were injured in 366 accidents.

The local station is in charge of Corporal R. D. Evans, a veteran of the motor patrol, who is assisted by six patrolmen all picked to handle this dangerous territory.

The station covers all of Lower Bucks County, from Philadelphia to the Delaware River and as far up the river as New Hope. Almost 35 square miles are covered daily by the men from this station.

At least five men are on duty 24 hours a day to keep traffic moving on the congested Lincoln Highway from Philadelphia to Trenton and on the curving, narrow Bristol Pike.

Thirty motorists were arrested and pronounced intoxicated by physicians after being arrested by patrolmen from this station. In all Bucks County, but 48 persons were arrested on this charge.

In 366 accidents, averaging one a day, 447 persons were injured, requiring hospital treatment, and 64 motorists were given first aid by the patrolmen before being taken to hospitals.

Fourteen persons were arrested for manslaughter and 978 for other violations of the motor code. A total of 14,938 cars were stopped and inspected for lawful brakes and lights; 2,256 trucks were weighed during the hours between midnight and 6 a. m.

Motorcycle escorts were given 67 times during the year, mostly when some person critically ill was being rushed from home to a hospital. Thirty stolen cars were recovered, having a total value of $10,000, and 11 auto fires were extinguished by the patrolmen.

The total property damage in accidents last year was $60,000. The patrolmen on regular daily patrols covered 127,146 miles by cycle and auto.

Being the only organized police force between Philadelphia and Morrisville, all local police calls are sent to this station. During the past year some tragic and some humorous calls were received. Last year a horse wandered away from his pasture and was picked up by Patrolman Diem along the Lincoln Highway.

Diem located the owner and returned the horse in first class shape. Patrolman Carfagno kept another horse in the station's garage all night until its owner called.

With Corporal Evans at the station are Patrolmen A. P. Diem, C. Reitz, A. Hands, C. Butcavage, W. A. Stabile and Gene Carfagno.

Trenton Commissioners Defer Action On Bus Line

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 7—The City Commission yesterday deferred action on a request of Israel Richmond, operator of a Morrisville-Trenton bus line, for municipal consent to pick up and discharge passengers on West Hanover street, between the North Warren street terminal and Calhoun street. Richmond said he had received requests for such service. He proposed a five-cent fare for the trip.

Formally objecting to the application was Rankin Johnson, co-receiver of the Trenton Transit Company.

Commissioner Swan suggested the application be laid over pending the presentation by Mr. Richmond of a formal resolution, setting forth the provisions of the request. Mr. Swan pointed out that the matter was eventually to be decided by the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners. He pointed out further that the city had long ago established a precedent against such applications.

PRESERVING CITY NOISES

In a corner stone of a new building being erected in New York City
a phonograph record is to be sealed.
On it is a recording of characteristic sounds of the big city of our time.

The plan of the record is somewhat that of a radio drama. There is a narrator and sundry actors whose conversations furnish a clue
to what the sounds mean.

As a feature of the recital, the narrator speculates on the contrast of the sounds heard in 1934 with those of 2034.

The probability is that the supposed 2034 citizen finding the peculiar disk may not associate it with the funny old phonographs preserved in the museum. But should he find a way to play the thing he certainly will exclaim, "What a lot of barbarians' people must have been to put up with such a nerve-shattering uproar as an unescapable
accompaniment of their daily life!"

There is, of course, the greater probability that in a decade or so the building will be called obsolete and when it is pulled down the sound record will be no novelty at all. Such has been the manner of architectural changes in great cities
for some time in the past.

TAKE THAT COLD TO BED

You have a cold; how did you catch it? Got your feet wet, or did you get some germ that's going around?

You don't know? Well, that is not strange. Probably your physician doesn't know either.

Medical authorities do not speak
arbitrarily on the subject of colds.
At least they know that there is no
well-defined ailment with a specific cause as might be understood from the term, "common cold."

The cold a child has probably is caused by contagious infection. For that reason it is well to be careful of the contacts of children.

Some physicians deny the wet-foot and exposure theory of cause of cold. And the dear vitamins, which have been so much praised,
can't insure against "common colds" no matter how vitamin-rich
your diet may be.

"So," says the physician, "if you get a cold, go to bed and take the doctor's medicine. You may not know how you got the cold, but that will help you to get rid of it."

Still, all the great losses of the last 20 years were due to the fallacy
that conditions never would change.

The temperature at the Byrd
camp ran over 35 one day recently.
Nevertheless, we predict the Little America peach crop will be a failure.

We'd like to hang around another 20 or 21 years if only to watch the Dionne girls functioning
as a voting bloc.

An island off Formosa has dropped from sight three times in a generation on account of volcanic causes. Or possibly amnesia.

Rallying the new Congress so soon after New Year's may catch some of the good resolutions at their peak.

A painter has been dropped by the National Academy of Design for copying. It serves the slow right for not taking up song writing in the first place.

Echoes of The Past

By Louise White Watson

The Push Button

Many will recall that yoke of oxen
bought by David Satterthwaite, Sr., for the purpose of removing stumps
from an orchard whose trees, long past successful, commercial fruitage, had fallen before the axe. Slowly they strained ahead, the roots stubbornly resisting against being driven from the spot where they had so long dwelt and proudly held forth the wonderful beauty of an apple orchard in full bloom, the fragrance, delicate, appealing, slowly drifting over the misty, delicate blossoms. How the villagers assembled to witness the slow but sure process. The push button of dynamite had not risen to view, neither had the tractors entered the realm of doomed trees and begun pulling them out by the roots—two tractors
with an average of twenty trees uprooted every hour. Those California peach orchards never yielded an inch,
in the way of beauty, to the cherry blossoms beautifying that section at Washington, D. C., and by the way, what a wonderful push button it was for Japan to present those trees to this glorious nation, knowing the beauty of their blossoming would strike a keynote of sympathy to them from across the seas. The Maryland peach orchards raised their heads
from enveloping folds of blossoms,
and other States are hoping the day will never come when some little insignificant, but mighty insect, will issue a protest against their survival.
Many recall that immense peach orchard of the late Alfred M. Parsons, and the apple orchards standing nearby.

Another Button

Over fifty years ago Henry Ford's attention was attracted to a contraption, known as a silent "gas engine."
Otto, a German, was the inventor. The Michigan farm boy, then a machinist in Detroit, read of this machine and later got a chance to repair an Otto engine at the Eagle Iron Works, in 1885. It was a single cylinder machine, operated by illuminating gas.
The dissection of that contraption was Henry Ford's push button toward the achievement that is known the world over.

The Slow Oxen

Not those on the Satterthwaite
farm, tugging away at resisting roots,
but mankind, ever cautious in accepting innovations on scheduled possessions. Horses had done duty since time had demonstrated their usefulness, and who had any faith in this gasless buggy, completed by Ford in 1892, and for months was one of the sights of Detroit? The police and the owners of those horses, goaded into frantic activity such as they had not known for years, caused them to stand with an offish concern as to what would happen next. Roads? Yes, they were of the humpty-dumpty kind that shook with laughter as they rocked the inventor and owner of that queer looking concern he was putting to the test. It is said when he appeared in this toposid buggy, traffic was blocked by the many, eager to ask questions even though they delighted in scoffing at Ford's explanations.
Slow? But what invention has not had to weather this gale of derision? Back to those uprooting trees where the tractor reigned supreme, the tractor,

a close relation to the buggy that Henry Ford again rode in triumph
three decades after his first venture.
He ran this first car one thousand miles, then sold it for two hundred dollars because he needed the money, and later bought it back to keep as a curio. He kept his finger on the button, and at the Century of Progress Fair at Chicago, he, who needed that two hundred dollars to push his brain and business, was able to prepare an exhibit costing $2,000,000, and to have

The Garden Goes to Sleep

It used to go to sleep, and many do today, those old-time gardens out there tucked under the brown leaves that cuddle them so closely, or the blankets of snow when the skies drop their whiteness in force, but some one found a push button and pressed it,
first, out of curiosity as to what man might do, and now it is nothing unusual to have all sorts of fruits and flowers in the home, where once one waited for the warm, coaxing days of sunshine. Lilacs and grapes when the blizzards rage!

A Resting Time

Those lines, "Dreary and brown and barren, Lies idly the waiting earth," is the push button that throws on the screen why the gardens are at rest. They are simply waiting for their turn to do and share, according to the decree of Nature. One knows that barren-looking earth is just full of promises, all the more welcome
when they come forth at their own volition. 'Tis the hand of wealth alone that pushes the button that disturbs the rest that is, by rights, theirs. That revealing picture, "Repose During the Flight," shows the Mother Mary bending lovingly over the infant, lying asleep. Murillo, the artist, in thus picturing that sacred scene, has gently pushed us back from the strain of accompanying them on their forced journey, and one rests peacefully, as do they. The dark, rich coloring, the strength of the tree in close background, one hand, palm open, reaching toward Joseph, the other touching the garment on which the young child lay. Doesn't it harmonize with "All is calm?" One lingers.

A Wonderful Button

"Love thy neighbor." Those two Americans, enemies to war, so outstanding in their different lines as to be awarded the Nobel Prize. Others include Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Woodrow Wilson, Charles G.
Dawes, Frank B. Kellogg, Jane
Adams, and Nicolas Murray Butler, the last two being joint recipients of the 1931 Nobel Peace Prize. All these and others, have pressed buttons that have enlightened and enriched the world.

Another Button

Who but P. T. Barnum, then thirty-two years old, would have thought of taking Charles Sherwood Stratton (Tom Thumb), from his unhappy home and by exhibiting the dwarf,
dressed in the latest mode, spats,
high silk hat, cane, etc., and make the world anxious to see and to pay for seeing, the one whose growth stopped when six months old. Weighing nine pounds, two ounces when born, he grew normally until six months of age. When one year old he was two feet tall and weighed 15 pounds, one ounce. Not until he reached his teens did these figures change, when he advanced to 3 feet, 4 inches in height, and weighed 70 pounds. When appearing on the street he met derisive jeers from those of his own age. His father, a "Puritan Yankee," deeply mortified, forbade the boy to leave the place, Barnum heard of these conditions. He pushed a button, argued with the father for a time, and finally succeeded in putting over one of his biggest ventures. Some even today, recall that tiny coach and little ponies, proudly bearing Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thumb (as he was then known), her sister, little Minnie Warren, and Commodore Nutt, one even smaller than Tom Thumb. Instead of that old game, "Button, button, who's got the button," the slogan now-days is "Button, button, who pushes the button?" And remember, there are many buttons yet waiting to be pushed.

EDGELY

At the home of Mrs. Walter Scott
Friday evening the ladies' pinocle club of Headley Manor entertained husbands and friends. Music was furnished for dancing by Mrs. William Grace and Mrs. Harold Bergmann, piano; James Coyle, mandolin; Misses Kitty and Minnie Traas, violins. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Bernardine Coyle, Harold Bergmann and James Coyle; piano and violin duet,
Misses Kitty and Minnie Traas.

Favors were given to all the guests and refreshments served to: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bergmann, Mr. and Mrs.
George Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dewsnap, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Allen,
Mr. and Mrs. Otto Rohn, Mr. and Mrs.
William Grace, Mrs. Edith Baker, Mrs.
Watson, the Misses Mary, Grace, Minnie and Kitty Traas, Helen Dewsnap, Bernardine Coyle, Marion Dewsnap,
Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Scott, Messrs.

Edward Bergmann, Howard Baker
and Joseph Coyle. Prizes were awarded for highest card scores to: Mrs.
Schultz, Miss Coyle, Mrs. Rohn, Mrs.
Baker and Warren Allen.

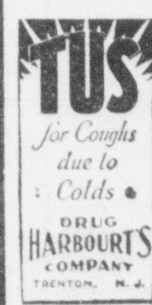

On Tuesday evening the Ladies'
Auxiliary of Edgely Fire Co. will meet at the home of the president, Mrs. Walter Scott, instead of at the fire house,
as has been the custom. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all women interested to attend. After routine business the evening will be devoted to a social time. Cards will be played.

Borough Council stated that both companies in the borough desire an ordinance of that kind.

Webster L. Jones announced that at a meeting of the firemen Raymond E. Strunk had been elected chief and Raymond Heller his assistant. The names of six drivers of the apparatus for the West End Company were approved. They include Max Cummings, Paul Gross, Floyd Afflerbach, Frederick Walker, Walter Fox and Eugene Shelly.

It was announced that starting Thursday morning, twenty-five men would go to work on reconstructing the sewer system. The men will begin work on Ninth street. It was also decided to buy the pipe for this project from local men at the lowest price possible.

The annual report of the police department was submitted by Chief Burgess Victor A. Smith as follows: 41 arrests, 100 doors found open or unlocked, 591 white way lights found not burning and reported to the electric light department; 418 persons given lodging, the following nationalities being represented: 340 Americans, 32 colored, 21 Polish, 5 Russians, 5 Italians, and 3 Slavish.

Three run-away boys were apprehended and returned to their homes. The finance committee recommended that $6000 be transferred from the electric light department to the borough account to pay outstanding bills and a note. Borough bills totaling $1,324.40 were ordered paid.

Clerk F. S. Ahlman's report showed that electric meter sales for the past month amounted to $10,330.77, a record for a month's consumption of current.

Humor was injected into the meeting with the report that somebody has been stealing electric light bulbs from the borough building right under the eyes of the police, who have their headquarters there. It was reported that six bulbs had to be bought every month to replace the ones stolen.

necessary to make a family self-sustaining.

The larger projects, involving the rehabilitation of entire communities, are intended to form co-operative organizations to make the community self-sustaining. The Rural Rehabilitation Corporation will carry on this work through the work of a board of directors, with King acting as chairman of the board. The state organization will be modeled after the recommendations of the Federal Emergency Relief Board, which provides the principal source of funds to be used in the work.

The organization of the corporation will include a man in every county to direct the work of that county, but who will also be responsible to the State Emergency Relief Board.

It is believed that the formation of such a corporation will take care of many cases which cannot be handled by any other relief agency of the Federal Recovery Administration. For example, it has been pointed out that in many of the mining towns the only source of employment, the mines, have closed down, leaving the people with no means of earning a livelihood. The Rural Rehabilitation Corporation will loan these people money to produce goods in order that they need not be dependent on relief.

King's position places him under the direction of Eric Biddle, State Emergency Relief Administrator.

The manager of the King Farms Company has succeeded in operating one of the most successful of truck farming ventures in the United States and it was primarily because of his success in this line he was appointed to direct the state-wide rural relief program.

WHITE ELEPHANTS WIN OVER CATHOLIC BOYS

The White Elephants stopped the Catholic Boys Club last night in No. 4 Fire House by the score of 47 to 20.

The Elephants got the lead in the first quarter and increased it as the game progressed. The lead was taken by "Bob" Hughes, who for the second time in over a week put them in from every angle of the court. "Bob" rang up no less than 13 field goals which was six more points than the entire Catholic Club team scored. Charles Hughes also hit the cord for eight points while Price put in a very fine passing game which helped "Bob" to several of his goals. Joe McGee and Fitzgerald both played a very hard game in trying to stop the Elephants' attack. "Joe" also put in eight of his team points.

The Elephants lead at the half by the score of 17 to 6. In the third quarter both teams' attack worked very good, and was the only quarter in which the Catholic Club could work its attack.

In the first game the Elephants beat the Catholic Club by the score of 22 to 21. Moss's goal in the last minute of play from the center of the floor won the game. While C. Hughes was high. Score with eight points. The Catholic club almost won the game in the last quarter.

Big bluff Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense counsel, took up the cross-examination.

Q—Did you ever work in London?

A—I did.

Q—Did you ever work in Detroit?

A—Yes, several years.

Q—Did you associate with any young men in Detroit?

A—I did.

Q—What were their games?

There was a quick objection from Attorney General Wilentz, which was sustained.

Q—Well, did you keep up a correspondence with any of these young men after leaving Detroit?

A—No.

Reilly has hinted in his earlier cross examination that the Purple Gang of Detroit might be blamed by the defense for the kidnapping.

Reilly then interrogated the attractive, brunette nurse concerning

Henry "Red" Johnson, an ex-sailor friend of hers.

Q—Did you ever go to a road house with him?

A—I went to a road house with him on New Year's eve in 1932.

Q—Who else was with you?

A—One other couple.

Q—You went out with him often?

A—Yes.

Q—Did Johnson have an apartment in Englewood, N. J.

A—Not that I know of.

Q—What was his position?

A—He worked on Thomas Lamont's yacht.

Q—Where is "Red" Johnson now?

A—Johnson is now in Norway.
